Good morning,

I feel that my experience as a Senior Associate in KPMG's Financial Management practice is a great fit for the Financial Systems Analyst position at Fitbit. At KPMG, I have functioned in analyst and project management roles on major Hyperion implementations for financial planning and budgeting. During these projects, I have had hands on experience in not only analyzing and documenting current and future state financial processes but also working with finance organizations to improve financial processes through technology. In addition to system implementations, I have also assisted financial audit teams in analyzing many different financial processes and I feel that this experience adds to my overall accounting and business logic that many systems analysts would not possess. In addition to my experience with accounting and business logic, I have a strong interest in application development and recently developed a custom application in ASP.NET that would have otherwise cost the company over $1 million by their own estimates.

In summary, I hope this letter has conveyed my enthusiasm for Fitbit and also my qualifications that I can bring from my experience in financial systems consulting and public accounting. I would love to be able to discuss more of what I could bring to your organization in an interview. Thank you.

Sincerely,
